

A message from the Mayor

I hope you can pop down to the Tramshed Arts and Community Centre at Narrabeen today for its much anticipated official opening.

This cherished facility has seen an entire revamp of the site as it was outdated and needed to be modernised to bring its facilities up to current standards.

It's now complete with a community centre and hall, an inclusive playground, basketball courts, a new café and a restored tram.

We'll see the return of up to 65 classes a week from art to fitness classes and community support groups.

The project was a long time in the making and we really appreciate your patience during construction.

Next week marks the start of Carers Week which recognises and celebrates the outstanding contribution Australia's 2.7 million unpaid carers make to our country.

On behalf of our community, I want to thank the local service providers and all our carers for the vital role they play in our community. I hope they can find time to take a break and engage in our range of free activities focused on getting together and having fun. They certainly deserve it.

We have a great line-up of activities especially for carers throughout the week including meditation, craft, health tips, cooking demonstrations, a movie screening and even massages. Check out our website for more details.

I'd also like to welcome the new CEO, Mr Ray Brownlee who started just over a week ago.

With his extensive career in local government and most recently as General Manager of Randwick City Council, he has already got down to the business of providing the best services and facilities to our community.

He has hit the ground running and I, along with my fellow elected representatives, look forward to working with him to make the Northern Beaches an even better place to live, work and visit. Have a great weekend.
